The Birth of the Covenant Nation

A Study of Exodus

*Ye have seen what I did unto the Egyptians,
and how I bare you on eagles' wings,
and brought you unto myself.*

*Now therefore, if ye will obey my voice indeed,
and keep my covenant,
then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people:
for all the earth is mine:*

*And ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests,
and an holy nation.*

INTRODUCTION

And God heard their groaning, and God remembered his covenant with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob. And God looked upon the children of Israel, and God had respect unto them. Exodus 2:24-25

The events recorded in the book of Exodus are a result of what we are told about God in Exodus 2:24-25. In His Covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, God had committed Himself to bring salvation from sin and the curse. That Covenant stated that the blessing of salvation would come to all the earth through the descendants of the Patriarchs as they dwelt as a great nation in the land of Canaan. Yet when Exodus opens, the people of the Covenant, although now great in number, were not only outside of the Promised Land, but were suffering severe affliction as slaves in Egypt. In fact, their very existence as a people was threatened by their cruel masters. Where was the God of the Patriarchs? The answer to that question is that He was poised to give a magnificent revelation of Himself and His work of redemption. He had heard their grief. He had not forgotten His Covenant. He had looked upon their affliction. He had acknowledged them as the children of the Covenant. He would now act on their behalf to bring closer the promised redemption in the Seed of Abraham.

In the story that unfolds in Exodus, there is a threefold revelation of the salvation of God. First, it is seen in the great deliverance from bondage to Pharaoh. Secondly, it is seen in the giving of the Law at Sinai. Thirdly, it is seen in the experiences of the people as they begin their life as God's Covenant Nation. None of these revelations is an end in itself, but directs the hopes and expectations of the true believer toward the ultimate fulfillment of the Covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob in the Coming Seed. He is the focal point of all that God is doing in Exodus.

DELIVERANCE

The situation of the children of Israel was hopeless when God sent Moses to deliver them. They were in bondage to one of the great national powers of world history. They had no political or military organization. They had no leader. When YHWH sent Moses, they were hopeful, but when Pharaoh resisted and made their lot worse, they lost all hope of deliverance. Yet YHWH exercised His mighty power in a series of plagues that made it clear that this was a work of YHWH. No one, Pharaoh included, could stand against Him. While Pharaoh saw His fierce and irresistible wrath, the children of Israel learned that He saved by the shed blood of the Passover Lamb. YHWH was preparing them for the Coming Seed, who as the Lamb of God, would take away the sin of the world.

DECALOGUE

After their deliverance from Egyptian bondage, YHWH revealed His intent to make them into a holy nation. They would be a special possession of God who would dwell in their midst, but they must keep His Covenant. That Covenant was revealed to Moses on Mount Sinai and presented in summary form in the Decalogue written on tablets of stone. It included instructions for all aspects of their lives. They were also to make a tabernacle for a dwelling place of God. The priesthood of Aaron was established. He was responsible to present the daily and special sacrifices which would make atonement for the sins of the people and enable God to dwell with them. The Decalogue was a revelation of the righteousness of God and the necessity for blood sacrifice to atone for sins. It anticipated the "precious blood" of the righteous Son of God which would remove forever the sins of the people of God.

DISCIPLINE

At a later time, Moses reminded the people that "...YHWH thy God led thee these forty years in the wilderness, to humble thee, and to prove thee, to know what was in thine heart, whether thou wouldest keep his commandments, or no." (Deuteronomy 8:2) Exodus gives an account of the conduct of the people of God as they learned to live as the Covenant Nation. After their mighty deliverance from Egypt, they eagerly agreed, "All that YHWH hath spoken we will do." (Exodus 19:8) What soon became apparent was that not only could they not do all that YHWH had told them, but neither could they endure with patience the circumstances into which He led them. Both the Decalogue and the discipline of YHWH were beyond their ability to receive. YHWH demanded a holy people and the children of the Promise were not able to meet that requirement.

A GOLDEN CALF

The book comes to a climax in the story of the golden calf. The people became impatient as they waited for Moses before Mount Sinai. They said to Aaron, "Up, make us gods, which shall go before us; for as for this Moses, the man that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him.” (Exodus 32:1) It had been less than a year since they had seen the mighty deliverance of YHWH from Egypt. It was only a few weeks since they had received the Ten Commandments and been sprinkled with the blood of the Covenant. Yet here they were, worshipping and celebrating a golden calf as “...thy gods, O Israel, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.” (Exodus 32:4)

YHWH responded with fury. Here was a people more blessed than any other since the creation of the world, but they were stiff-necked and bent on doing evil. He would destroy this evil nation and make Moses a great nation.

A GOD OF GRACE

The situation of the people was more than a little desperate. They had no reason to expect anything less than total destruction. Furthermore, there is no indication that they had any inclination to repent from their evil and turn back to YHWH. Remarkably, one man stood before God on their behalf and pled with God not to execute His fierce wrath upon this sinful people. His prayers showed that Moses had learned the true basis for YHWH's dealing with His fallen people.

No less than five times in the two chapters that followed, Moses appealed to the grace of God. There was no worthiness in this nation. If they were to be saved, it would be by God's grace and His grace alone.

This is the key to understanding the ways of God in this book. His deliverance was not an indication of the worthiness of the nation. His Decalogue was not an indication of the native ability of the Covenant people. His discipline was not a display of the nobility of a chosen people. Rather, they displayed the grace of God as He delivered a sinful nation, revealed His holy Law to them, and led them in the way of blessing.

It would be sufficient to have only this revelation of God in the Bible. We need only know that He is a God that delivers by grace. But more than this, He is pleased to reveal to us the basis for His wonderful grace. This too is found in Exodus, although in pictures and types. With diligence in study, we are shown pictures of the Coming Son of God whose death and resurrection are that foundation of the grace to which Moses appealed for the survival and blessing of the nation. The book of Exodus is above all a revelation of the grace of God.

Scripture Memorization

Psalm 107:1-2

1. O give thanks unto the LORD,
for he is good:
for his mercy endureth for ever.
2. Let the redeemed of the LORD say so,
whom he hath redeemed from the hand of the enemy.

Psalm 107:8-15

8. Oh that men would praise the LORD for his goodness,
and for his wonderful works to the children of men!
9. For he satisfieth the longing soul,
and filleth the hungry soul with goodness.
10. Such as sit in darkness and in the shadow of death,
being bound in affliction and iron;
11. Because they rebelled against the words of God,
and contemned the counsel of the most High:
12. Therefore he brought down their heart with labour;
they fell down,
and there was none to help.
13. Then they cried unto the LORD in their trouble,
and he saved them out of their distresses.
14. He brought them out of the darkness and the shadow of death,
and brake their bands in sunder.
15. Oh that men would praise the LORD for his goodness,
and for his wonderful works to the children of men!

Exodus 1-2

MEMORY: Psalm 107:1

HYMN: "O God, Our Help in Ages Past"

SUMMARY: *The children of Israel prospered in Egypt. Precisely because of this prosperity, they were forced into slavery and harshly treated. An attempt was made to kill all male babies. In this troubled time, Moses was born. He was preserved and taken by Pharaoh's daughter to be her son. When he was grown, Moses identified with his suffering brethren, and in so doing, he killed an Egyptian. He had to flee for his life. The misery of God's people increased. He told Moses to lead His people from their bondage in Egypt and take them to a land flowing with milk and honey. SUMMARY: *“Who is YHWH, that I should obey his voice to let Israel go? I know not YHWH, neither will I let Israel go,” roared Pharaoh when Moses told him YHWH had said to let His people go. Instead, he increased the burdens and afflictions of Israel. In a response that would be repeated in the days ahead, the people murmured against Moses. HYMN: "O God, Our Help in Ages Past"

SUMMARY: *YHWH told Moses that the Egyptians would learn that He is YHWH by the signs and wonders He would bring on Egypt and by the deliverance of His people. Pharaoh's heart was hardened by the miracle with Aaron's rod, and he would not heed Moses and Aaron. For this, YHWH began to plague Egypt. The waters of the Nile River turned to blood first. HYMN: "O God, Our Help in Ages Past"

SUMMARY: Five more plagues came upon Egypt: death to livestock, boils upon men and animals, devastating hail, locusts, and deep darkness. In each case, it was clear that it was YHWH Himself who sent the plague. It was also clear that YHWH was making a distinction between the Egyptians and His people. HYMN: "O God, Our Help in Ages Past"

SUMMARY: Moses led the people in a song of praise to YHWH for His great victory over the Egyptians. In a short time, these same people were murmuring against YHWH because of the bitterness of the water. YHWH made the water sweet. Again, the people murmured against YHWH because of lack of food. When the Amalekites came against Israel, Israel defeated them as Moses held his rod over the battlefield. When Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, came to the camp, he rejoiced to hear of YHWH's goodness, but was troubled that Moses alone judged the people. YHWH then specially gifted two men to do the artistic workmanship of the Tabernacle. Other gifted craftsmen worked with them to build the Tabernacle, the courtyard, the articles of furniture, and Aaron's garments. The materials given by the people were more than enough to do the work exactly as YHWH had commanded.
